Mistral AI Launches Forge — Enterprises Can Now Train AI Models

On March 17, 2026, at Nvidia's GTC conference, Mistral AI launched Forge — a platform that enables enterprises to train AI models from the ground up using their own proprietary data, internal documentation, workflows, and operational records.

Perplexity Launches Enterprise AI Agent — A $20 Billion Startup

Perplexity — the AI-powered search company valued at $20 billion — announced at its inaugural Ask 2026 developer conference that its multi-model AI agent "Computer" is now available to enterprise customers, directly competing with Microsoft Copilot and Salesforce Agentforce. Perplexity's internal projections target $656 million in annual recurring revenue by end of 2026 — requiring approximately 230% growth.

A Major AI Breakthrough Is Coming in 2026 and Most Businesses Are Not Ready

In a sweeping report published March 13, 2026, Morgan Stanley warned that a transformative leap in AI capability is imminent in the first half of 2026, describing the coming period as "Transformative AI" — a potentially powerful deflationary force as AI tools begin replicating human work at a fraction of current cost. Build a deliberate 12-month roadmap to restructure around AI capacity before the next capability jump lands.
